Sustainability

Nemeth Bonnette Brouwer believes that protecting our environment and natural resources is crucial for our employees, the global community, the local community, and thus our clients. While law firms have a reputation for generating more than their fair share of paper, we are making a concerted effort to operate as a sustainable law firm. To that end, we are committed to making decisions regarding travel, purchasing, waste reduction and paper use with a focus on sustainability. For example, more than a decade ago, we began scanning and sending all incoming mail electronically, rather than distributing paper copies. We continue to move toward a paperless office, and constantly seek ways to expand our commitment to reducing our footprint.
